simultaneously on the Committees of more than one society. The Registrar has sent a draft rule to give effect to this order.

2) But it is seen that Rule 6(c) framed subsequently for the restriction of multiple membership (a copy of the notification is also placed in the file) directs that no person being a member of a Credit Society - except a L.M. Branch of a U.B. Bank etc - shall be a member of any other credit society without the general or special sanction of the Registrar. The restriction placed on persons to become members of more than one society is virtually a suspension. Even as regards the existing members of more than one society, it is seen that the proviso of the Rule allows them members only for the discharge of their existing liabilities but disqualifies them positively to serve on the Committee of management of such societies. These two restrictions are themselves sufficient to give effect to the recommendations and orders of Government, and there seems no necessity to frame the rule 6(d) as recommended by the Registrar. 13) The objections to the proposed Rule, raised by the Mysore Co-operative Society are mainly to the effect that the Rule gives unnecessary powers to the Registrar and that it is likely be abused. These do not merit consideration. The objection that the Rule tends to the artificial deprival of the services of able and experienced co-operators to several societies and wastage of trained co-operative talent has some force but as the Registrar is proposed to be given discretion to grant permission to any person to serve as a Director in more than one society of the same kind, (either of his own accord or on the application of the person or the general bodies or committees of management or members of the concerned societies), there is no possibility of depriving any real co-operator of the chance of rendering services in more than one society. The Registrar may be trusted to exercise his discretion in the best interests of societies. The observations of the Committee on Co-operation in Mysore in this respect are as follows:-

"There have been several instances of the same persons securing places on the committees of management of more societies than one. There is no harm in this so long as the societies are of different types not likely to have conflicting interests and so long as the individual concerned can do adequate justice to his duties and responsibilities with regard to each institution. But no person should ordinarily be eligible to serve simultaneously on the committees of more than

NOTE—Contn. Sheet.

than one society of the same type without the sanction of the Registrar. A Central Financing Institution and a primary Urban Bank may be taken to be of different types for the purpose of this Rule".

(4) Mr.Rama Rao's objections cover almost the same ground and he desires that, if in spite of the objections, it is proposed to enact the Rule, it may be modified suitably so as to make it necessary for the person to obtain sanction prior to standing as a candidate for election in the second society and also to clearly define the expression "of the same type". With regard to the first, I think it may be left to the good sense of the members themselves. With regard to the second, I may point out that - nowhere in the Act or in the Rules has any classification of the societies been made. In the absence of such a classification, I think that it is best to leave unfettered the hands of the Registrar. I may however state that the types of societies now existing in Mysore are the following:-

1. Central Financing Banks. (Apex Bank, Central Bank, Central Land Mortgage Bank, District Central Banks, Federal Banking Unions).
2. Credit Societies.
3. Stores Societies or Consumers' Societies. (Scout Co-operative Stores, Malleswaram Co-operative Society, etc).
4. Combined Banking and Stores Societies. (e.g. Bangalore City Society, Basavangudi Co-operative Society, Mysore City Society, Mysore Lancers' Co-operative Society, etc)
5. Housing or House-Building Societies.
6. Clothing Depots. (e.g., The Industrial and Commercial Co-operative Society, The Mysore Khaddar Co-operative Society).
7. Agricultural Supply Societies.

8. The Serial No.

8. The Artizans Societies. (e.g., Gudigars Societies, Weavers Societies etc.).

9. Federations/associations for co-operative propaganda and education. (Co-operative Institute, Federal union of Mysore)

10) Combined Banking and Stores Societies will have to be deemed to belong to both the types of credit and stores societies. Instead of enumerating the types of societies in the Rule and thereby give scope for unnecessary quibbling and hair-splitting differences, I think the Rule as proposed and published, may be approved.

To

The Secretary to Government,
Local Self Government Department,
B a n g a l o r e.

Sir,

With reference to Government Notification No.D 936-C.S.14-38-4 dated the 4th August 1938, publishing draft rule 6 (d) of the Mysore Co-operative Societies Rules prohibiting a person from serving on the Committee of Management of more than one Co-operative Society of the same type without the special or general sanction of the Registrar, I humbly beg to state that it is unnecessary to promulgate the rule and submit the following objections to its issue:-

(1) Even in urban areas, societies are finding it difficult to secure proper, qualified and efficient persons of character, position and experience to serve on the Committees, as there are very few such persons available and even those, do not voluntarily offer their services but have to be coaxed and persuaded and prevailed upon to accept places on the Committee.

(2) Unlike Joint Stock Companies, Co-operative institutions, even of the same type, do not vie with one another in canvassing business or in cut-throat competition in the matter of rates, facilities, dividends, etc., and therefore there is no likelihood of interests of such institutions suffering or coming into conflict with one another if the same person serves on each Committee simultaneously.

(3) On the other hand persons who realize their responsibilities as true Co-operators and who simultaneously serve on the Committees of more than one Society may be confidently trusted to do their best to advance the interests of each such society by co-ordinating their work and introducing useful reforms based on their experience for the benefit of every society concerned.

(4) The members of societies are very careful and guarded in their choice and do not generally elect to their own Committee a person who is already on the Committee of another society, unless they are convinced that his presence on their Committee is absolutely necessary in its interests and would definitely conduce to the advancement of its business on right lines.

(5) The General Body of each society in which the ultimate responsibility for its efficient administration rests, should be given full liberty to elect such agents to the Committee as it considers to be eminently fitted for managing its affairs to its best advantage and this inherent liberty of that body should not be unnecessarily hamped by inconvenient restrictions and impediments in its choice.

(6) The byelaws of societies generally provide for the compulsory removal of a member by the General Body if he acts prejudicially to the interests of the society.

(7) Standing for election to the Committee and serving on it, if elected are inherent rights of every member of a society and he should be allowed to exercise those rights freely without being compelled to seek the sanction of the Registrar either before his standing for election or after his election with the possible chance of a refusal of that sanction, thereby risking unnecessary, and perhaps also undeserved, humiliation to himself.

(8) A somewhat similar and wider restriction in the past in the case of Government Officers serving on Committees worked great hardship on the Societies as most of them depended a great deal on Government servants of experience for guiding their destinies and as such Government Officers refused and even thought it below their diginity to seek the sanction of the Registrar for serving on the Committees. After much agitation by the Societies and the Co-operative Conference, and, if I remember right, on a recommendation by the recent Cooperative Committee also, the Government had to withdraw this restriction.

(9) As full powers of control and inspection of societies and also the responsibility for auditing their accounts at least once a year are vested in the Registrar by the Co-operative Societies Act, any misconduct on the part of any Committee member is sure to be noticed by him promptly and checked or stopped without delay.

(10) Under Rule 21 of the Co-operative Societies Rules, the Registrar has full power to remove a member from a Committee if such a member has acted prejudicially to the interests of the society.

(11) With such a drastic power in the hands of the Registrar for taking effective steps against any erring member, it is superfluous to insist upon previous sanction of the Registrar for serving on Committees of more than one society.

2. If in spite of the foregoing objections, the Government consider it necessary to promulgate the rule, I submit the following suggestions:-

(a) The intentions of Government as to whether sanction should be sought before standing for election or after actual election should be made clear in the rule itself.

(b) The word "serve" used in the first line of the draft rule seems to indicate that the sanction of the Registrar is to be sought for and obtained by the member after his election to the Committee. If this is so and if the Registrar refuses sanction, the vacancy caused thereby is a permanent one and has to be filled up by fresh election by the General Body itself at a special meeting under Rule 31 of the Co-operative Societies Rules as it cannot possibly be construed as a casual vacancy to be temporarily filled up by the Committee itself. This would cause unnecessary delay, inconvenience and expenditure.

(c) If however the idea is that sanction should be obtained before standing for election, the member will be put to considerable inconvenience as he cannot possibly be sure of his election, and any refusal of sanction will launch him into humiliation and unnecessary annoyance.

(d) If by "societies of the same type", it is meant to indicate societies having one or more objects mentioned in section 3 of the Co-operative Societies Act common to one another, this may be made clear in the rule itself. In any case, a clear and unequivocal definition of this term by the Government itself is necessary instead of leaving it to the final decision of the Registrar.

I beg to remain,
Sir,

C. Rama Rau

OBJECTIONS TO THE PROPOSED DRAFT RULE 6.

1. Absence of any need or urgency for this reform. None has agitated for this and so far as we could see this has never been discussed in any Co-Operative Conference.

2. Undue Official dictation and interference:- The essence of Co-operation is self-effort. Co-operation based on official dictation is no co-operation. Conditions in India might have necessitated Governmental initiative, paternal help and guidance in the early stages. But paternalism does not imply dictation even against the will of the other party. To resort to such a policy 33years after the start of the movement does not augur well for it and does not speak well of the Governmental guidance. The guidance of the Government must be directed towards fostering of a spirit of self-help and not towards official control.

3. Creation of Cliques and coteries:- The problem of ~~municipality~~ multiplicity does not exist in rural co-operation. As conditions exist at present, it is not possible to create one society foreach local urban community. Government Rule 33 goes to the other extreme and creates numerous tiny societies with membership not exceeding 1000. Rule 6(c.) aims to segregate membership also in these tiny associations. These rules and the proposed rule 6(d.) would cut up the co-operators of a city into petty cliques and coteries where some bosses could easily reign and rule without fear of effective competition. All the co-operators cannot form a solid community. Occasional meeting at a Conference would not create any solid links of unity. Official 'guidance' would be only bond and this is not a 'Co-operative ' bond.

4. Artificial Deprival of the service of able and experienced co-operators to several societies:- There is no compensation for such a loss.

5. Benefits of Amalgamation and Federation:- Where the same persons could serve as Directors of more than one Soceity there would accrue the benefits of the amalgamation and Federation of such societies without any of the disadvantages of such amalgamation and federation. Common Directors would tend to create uniformity of policy, aims and rules.

6. Wastage of trained Co-operative talent.:- This rule would break the traditional attachments subsisting between many able and ardent co-operators and certain societies which they have founded or fostered or served. There is no tangible public benefit resulting from such a break-up. If all are to be segregated in tiny societies several of the able co-operators may not find themselves elected and all their talent would run to waste. If such persons fail to secure a place in one society,they could be induced to stand and secure a place in another society at least. Under the proposed rules this would not be possible and more than half of such perons would not find entry into the Directorate at all. There is no corresponding gain by the proposed reform for the tangible loss of the services of such trained talent.

7. No possibility of Monopoly.:- The rising democratic consciousness and regulations such as Government rule 6(B.) effectively check all scope for undesirable monopoly. It is not also shown what evils would flow from such pluralism. If multiple borrowing is properly prevented there could arise no possibility of any serious evil from multiple membership or multiple directorship.

Unless a person has established a great reputation in the co-operative world, he will not have any serious chances of being elected in more than one Society. The number of such persons is strictly limited. It cannot be said that such persons are in the way of others being elected into the Directorate and trained in such work.

8. No loss of efficiency:- There is no evidence that work suffers because of multiple directorship. Till now, the urban societies have worked quite harmoniously and efficiently.

9. Official Abuse:- The ruple proposed to invest the Registrar to allow exemptions. This leads to serious misunderstandings. Charges of abuse of discretion and partiality would destroy the ~~xxxx~~ true coperative atmosphere.
